CHINA’S HISTORIC FIRST

The first world squash championship ever to be held in China will take place in September when the city of Dalian hosts the 2018 WSF Women's World Team Championship.

Dalian, a major city and seaport in the south of Liaoning Province, will stage the biennial WSF championship at the Xigang Gymnasium, from 11-16 September, in another example of the worldwide reach of the sport as squash makes its case for Olympic inclusion.

The venue will feature all-glass showcourts, with arena seating, plus four permanent all-glass courts.

Entries are Australia, Canada, China, Egypt, England, Finland, France, Germany, Hong Kong China, India, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, South Africa, Switzerland and USA.

On awarding the rights to the event’s new hosts, WSF President Jacques Fontaine said: “China is a member of the world squash family that is showing its maturity with this hosting. There have been major international championships held on showcourts in iconic settings such as the Bund in Shanghai (pictured), and now women players from across the globe are excited about playing the World Team Championship in the city of Dalian.

“We are very grateful to the Chinese Squash Association, Dalian Squash and the city authorities who have collaborated to bring this premier event to China. We know that the teams, officials and spectators will have a memorable time in Dalian.”

Mrs Zhao Liping, Vice-Dean of the Multiball Center of the General Sports Administration of China said: "The Women’s World Team Championship 2018, which will be held in Dalian city of Liao Ning Province, is welcoming elite lady players from all over the world to compete together. The great squash event will definitely be a successful one, contributing to the development of the sport of squash in China as well as the world.”

On behalf of Dalian Squash, Mr Wang Guoguang (pictured) looks forward to the event, saying: “It is our pleasure and honour to welcome so many elite women players from around the world to our XiGang Centre, where they will inspire the passionate Chinese squash community. Squash in China is growing quickly and hosting this prestigious championship demonstrates our capability.”
WSF PRESIDENT OLYMPIC GAMES UPDATE – MAY 2018

We are firmly focussed on achieving a place on the programme of the Olympic Games 2024.

Although previous bids were strong efforts, only now do we feel that we have a real chance. Squash has changed in approach, and so has the perception of it by the IOC. Also, with Paris and LA as the next two hosts, we have countries where squash has a high level of recognition and legitimacy.

Real Team Effort
There is now a real team effort within the WSF and in full partnership with PSA, which has been well received. I know this from the many interactions I have had with key influencers on behalf of the bid, having travelled in recent months to meet IOC and others in Lausanne, at SportAccord in Thailand, The Commonwealth Games in Australia, the Winter Olympics in Korea, and the Egyptian Sports Minister in Cairo. A great deal of time taken, but important to keep listening and learning as well as telling our story.

Also, as a current Board member of the French National Olympic Committee I am in regular contact with them and the Paris 2024 Organising Committee on behalf of squash. It provides for a good understanding of what Paris 2024 and France want to achieve through hosting this historic event and the legacy the Games would like to leave for future generations in the country and abroad.

Resonating well
Our messages also resonate well with those I meet - of what we bring to the Games in terms of low cost, few additional athletes, great broadcast; constant innovation and youth focus; and all the other aspects that the IOC would like to be considered as part of Agenda2020 and the New Norm.

As Regions and Nations know, we and PSA have jointly engaged the services of a very capable campaign agency - Weber Shandwick, and with their advice have set out a campaign that allows us to engage with multiple stakeholders in the Olympic movement in France and beyond to explain why squash is the right choice to be added to the Paris 2024 Olympic Programme.

Momentum is progressive
At this point the timing of the nomination period has yet to be finalised by Paris/the IOC but we are pushing ahead now as momentum is progressive and needs to be built over time.

- We know we have a strong case, and know we must present it differently
- We know the whole sport is behind us
- With your help WSF & PSA will do our best to tell the squash story globally
- Thank you for supporting squash for the Olympic Games

President, WSF

WSF President Jacques Fontaine (right) in Cairo briefing Egyptian Sports Minister Khaled Abdelaziz on squash’s Olympic Games 2024 bid, while also confirming that Cairo will host the WSF AGM in October.
WSF has awarded the rights to host the 2020 World Masters Squash Championships to Poland. Fittingly, the world championships boasting the biggest field will take place at the world's biggest club - the 33-court Hasta La Vista Club in the historic city of Wroclaw.

The event, which is expected to attract players from all over the globe, aged from 35 to over 80, will take place from 25-31 August 2020 - following the 2018 championships in Charlottesville, Virginia, USA, from 29 July to 4 August this year.

The Hasta La Vista Club (the showcourt of which is pictured above) hosted the World Junior Championships in 2013, then the squash action of the 2017 World Games, before attracting the continent's top senior players for the European Masters Championships in September last year. This month the region's top players converged on the Hasta La Vista to compete in the annual European Team Championships.

Thousand or more players
"With the possibility of a thousand or more players of all ages participating in the World Masters it seems fitting that the world's largest club should host the matches," said WSF CEO Andrew Shelley. "The championship, played in five year age bands features a great blend of past champions, age group stars and masters players who will simply enjoy taking part.

"2020 World Masters will truly showcase the wide geography of Squash - played today across more than 185 countries all over the world, and its intergenerational profile - two of the reasons why we believe the sport would be a strategic choice for inclusion in the Olympic programme as well. "Dubtless so many of the players going to Charlotte (2019) will be marking up their diaries for 2020 straight afterwards. They can be sure of a great welcome in Poland."

Hasta La Vista owner Zenon Waniak (pictured) added: "I would like to cordially invite all of you to Hasta La Vista in Wroclaw, Poland to World Masters Championships 2020! "Squash is my great passion, that is why the place, in which we can host the best players from around the world, was created. Above all, I am very pleased, when people do not give up playing squash even despite their age.

"For several years I have been dreaming to organise the World Masters Championships, so I am waiting with great anticipation for year 2020. I hope that this event will be the great meeting of many nationalities in the atmosphere of sport competition, interesting conversations, good vibes and friendship.

WSF & PSA PARTNER THE OLYMPIC CHANNEL

PSA, in collaboration with WSF, has reached a cooperation agreement with the Olympic Channel in a partnership that will see all three organisations collaborate on content for the multi-platform global media destination.

The agreement will provide the Olympic Channel, launched by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) in 2016, with access to highlights from the world’s biggest squash tournaments including WSF World Men’s & Women’s Team Championships, a range of feature video content featuring the sport’s greatest athletes and an array of written content for its global platforms, ensuring that squash will reach a bigger audience than ever before.

"We are delighted to officially launch our relationship with Olympic Channel, which is a key step for squash as we continue to work toward our goal of bidding for inclusion in future Olympic Games," said PSA Chief Executive Alex Gough.

"The Olympic Channel is a pioneering multi-media platform and we feel that squash, with its commitment to innovation, will make a fantastic addition to their existing content output".

Over 65 sports
The agreement with WSF & PSA means that squash has joined more than 65 international governing bodies who have partnered with the Olympic Channel, strengthening the profile of squash amongst fans of other sports.

WORLD’S TOUGHEST RACKET SPORT?

New data captured through innovative PSA partnerships with Sports Data Labs and interactiveSquash that suggests squash could be the most physically demanding racket sport in the world.

Through the use of pioneering new technology, data captured during recent PSA World Tour events in Chicago, Sweden and Zurich saw player heart rates regularly exceeding 190bpm - with players covering up to five kilometres in a single match, combined with hundreds of lunges, multi-directional movements and explosive bursts of acceleration.

For the first time quantifying the physicality of top flight squash, the data has shone a light on the supreme physical demands required of professional squash players when competing at the sport’s elite level - whilst reinforcing squash’s position as one of the healthiest sports in the world.

The data has simultaneously placed squash at the forefront of conversations surrounding biometric data with Sports Data Labs tracking player heart-rate data in real-time, providing it for in-broadcast use to improve viewer experience and translate the intensity of lengthy rallies, and the players’ recovery abilities, into homes around the world - emphasising the sport’s commitment to enhancing athletes’ and viewers’ experiences, a cornerstone as squash vies to be included in the Olympic programme.

Heart rates approaching nearly 200bpm
Their systems saw players peaking regularly between 190-199 beats per minute - with the average recorded heart rate throughout the monitoring period 171 bpm.

During one match recorded by interactiveSquash’s distance-tracking programme ‘MoTrack’, Egyptian Tarek Momen was followed as he won a 97-minute five-game match over Frenchman Mathieu Castagnet. Momen covered just shy of 5 kilometres during a total of 100 contested points - an average of 49 meters per point - whilst striking the ball almost 1000 times. The longest single rally recorded during the time period, a 141 second affair won by another Egyptian, Ramy Ashour, saw the 30-year-old cover 235 meters and complete a dozen lunges of 90 degrees or greater - whilst striking the ball almost 50 times.

Through an average 52 minute match players can expect to cover 2.5 kilometres, execute over 100 lunges and strike the ball over 500 times - with the ball in play 63 per cent of the time for an average of 33 minutes - a figure that pushes squash towards the very top of the relative time-in-play tables.

JAHANGIR’S AWARD

Record-breaking squash player Jahangir Khan joined the likes of Sachin Tendulkar, Muthiah Muralitharan and MS Dhoni in receiving the honour of Outstanding Achievement in Sport Award at the 8th edition of the Asian Awards in London in April.

This year the Asian Awards in partnership with Payswiff honoured WSF Emiritus President Khan with the Outstanding Achievement in Sport Award.

Khan’s career reads like a record book. He became the youngest ever World Open Champion at 17, going on to win the title total of six times; he won the prestigious British Open a record 10 times; he played the second longest match in squash history and was unbeaten over 5 years and 8 months. In the words of Time Magazine, “if winning is everything, then Khan is the greatest.”
EL WELILY CUTS GAP

Raneem El Welily’s title win at the inaugural women’s El Gouna International in April has cut the gap between her and current World No.1 Nour El Sherbini to under 250 points after the PSA Women’s World Rankings for May were released.

An imperious display inside the all-glass showcourt held on El Gouna’s marina saw El Welily defeat El Sherbini 3-1 in the title decider with the points gap between the two now at its lowest since January of this year.

El Sherbini, El Welily and their compatriot Nour El Tayeb make up an all-Egyptian women’s top three which, after Marwan ElShorbagy joined older brother Mohamed and U.S. Open champion Ali Farag in the top three of the men’s World Rankings, the top ranking spots in both the men’s and women’s rankings being taken up by Egyptian trios for the first time in history.

New Zealand’s Joelle King is the only non-Egyptian in the top five as she stays at No.4, a place ahead of Nouran Gohar, who remains at No.5. The rest of the top 10 is unchanged as Camille Serme (No.6), Sarah-Jane Perry (No.8), Nicol David (No.9) and Alison Waters take up the final spots.

EGYPTIAN MEN’S TOP 3 AGAIN

Egyptian Marwan ElShorbagy, currently Bristol based, has overtaken France’s Gregory Gaultier to reach a career-high World No.3 ranking and complete the first all-Egyptian presence amongst the world’s top three positions on the men’s tour since April 2009.

The 24-year-old defeated World No.2 Ali Farag last month to lift his maiden World Series title at the El Gouna International to join Farag and older brother Mohamed – the current World No.1 – inside the world’s top three as they become the first brothers to reside in the top three at the same time since Brett and Rodney Martin in May 1994.

Gaultier’s drop down to No.4 marks his lowest ranking since April 2013 and he sits a place ahead of Tarek Momen, who retains his place inside the top five.

Germany’s Simon Rösner stays at No.6 ahead of 2016 World Champion Karim Abdel Gawad, three-time World Champion Ramy Ashour, Egypt’s Mohamed Abouelghar and New Zealand’s Paul Coll, who complete the top 10.

NEW ZEALAND TOP GOLD COAST MEDAL TABLE

While Squash relished its sixth appearance in the Commonwealth Games since making its debut in Malaysia in 1998, hosts Australia together with New Zealand and England shared the gold medals at Oxenford Studios in Gold Coast - with New Zealand topping the medals table for the first time since 2002.

105 athletes from 28 nations, officiated by 26 referees from 11 Commonwealth nations, competed in some 140 Singles and 115 Doubles matches - the busiest and most successful athlete being Kiwi star Joelle King who compressed 15 matches into the period en-route to collecting two gold and one bronze medal.

(Individual Gold winner King with R/U Sarah-Jane Perry and Bronze medalist Tesni Evans)

Athletes from India returned home with a best-ever two medals, while Malaysia celebrated its first men's singles medal thanks to unexpected bronze medal success by Nafiizwan Adnan (pictured right with winner James Willstrop and losing finalist Paul Coll).

Australian veterans David Palmer and Rachael Grinham, both aged 41 and former world number ones, also had much to celebrate. With a successful defence of his Men's Doubles gold medal - this time in front of a packed and partisan home crowd, and with Zac Alexander, a different partner from 2014 - Palmer extended his tally over six Games to nine medals, more than any other squash athlete.

Queenslander Grinham (pictured left with Palmer) became the most decorated female athlete after a Women's Doubles bronze took her total to eight medals, thereby maintaining her record as a medalist in each Games in which she has competed.

The spectacular all-glass showcourt, plus the six side courts which can easily be converted to four doubles courts, will be moved to a new National Squash Centre as a legacy of the Games.

Transitioning the courts

"For the next six weeks we're going to be busy transitioning these courts into our new Squash Stadium in Carrara," Squash Australia CEO Richard Vaughan commented. "We've been missing a really good venue with a glass court. This will give us a solid foundation to host major events in the future."

Australian legend Geoff Hunt, the eight-time British Open and four-time World Open champion between the 60s and 80s (pictured with WSF President Jacques Fontaine and fellow Australian legend Michelle Martin) was overwhelmed by the spectacle of the event and the unprecedented home crowd - some 2,500 spectators surrounding the glass court on all sides.

"The great thing about a court like this is that you can see the squash from everywhere. You've got a good view wherever you sit. Also, the quality of the TV coverage now is fantastic - it's made a huge difference. It's one of the best things to have happened for our sport."

Hunt, who presented the Men's Doubles medals added: "I coached the Australian team in the 1998 Games. I would love to have been involved in my day as a player - but it wasn't to be!"

"The people like me, Jonah Barrington, Ken Hiscoe, Gogi Alauddin and Hiddy Jahan were the pioneers - we started the PSA Tour.
To see the sport to develop to where it is now is exciting for us because we all started it off!"

Cyrus Poncha, the Indian National Coach, said: "We were very disappointed not to get another gold in the Women's Doubles, but our pair was beaten by the two-time world champions.

"But we are delighted to be going home with two medals rather than one. Joshna (Chinappa) and Dipika (Pallikal) in the women and Saurav (Ghosal) above in the men have done great honours for Indian squash over the past ten years - and it's testament to the system we started in 2000."

Speaking about the success of the New Zealand team, manager Wayne Werder said: "We've got such a small team. But it's been a brutal week - Joelle's had 15 matches and Paul (Coll) 14. We started our preparation for this two years ago. I think our strength is our team culture - all the players get on so well with each other."

The Malaysia perspective

Major Maniam, now a Director of the Squash Racquets Association of Malaysia but from 2002-2016 the Director of Coaching in India, said: "I was delighted to be involved in the historic debut of squash as head coach in the 1998 Commonwealth Games in KL.

"We did not earn any medals at the Games but that's when we enhanced our long-term elite training programme to do well in the coming years. Nicol David went on to win gold in 2010 and 2014. No other Malaysian had won a medal until Nafiizwan's bronze this year. We are absolutely thrilled with this result and hope to better it the next time around.

"I'm also pleased with all our doubles pairs as they put up creditable performances. We'll be there with a vengeance at the next games I'm sure.

The bar continues to rise

World Squash Federation CEO Andrew Shelley summed up the sport's Gold Coast experience: "When squash started its Commonwealth Games journey 20 years ago, the staging and presentation bar were set high in Kuala Lumpur - and it has been nothing but continued progress ever since. The spread of nations, the innovation on and around the court, superb broadcast and general sports presentation are general features that grow edition upon edition.

"Squash will evolve still further and Birmingham will doubtless rise to the challenge in four years' time - but the splendid Gold Coast Games will give them something to think about!"

HONG KONG CELEBRATE HISTORIC DOUBLE

Hong Kong China claimed both the men’s and women’s titles in the Asian Squash Team Championships for the first time in the event's 37-year history in the 2018 championships in Cheongju in the Republic of Korea.

The 19th staging of the biennial event attracted 15 men's teams and 11 women's teams from China, Chinese Taipei, Hong Kong China, Iran, Iraq, Japan, Jordan, Korea, Malaysia, Pakistan, Philippines, Qatar, Singapore, Sri Lanka and Thailand.

Hosts Korea made history in the women’s championship by reaching the final for the first time after upsetting second seeds Japan in the semi-finals. However, Hong Kong were too strong for the fifth seeds, winning 2/0.

Fifth Women's title
The victory marked Hong Kong's fifth women's title in their seventh final appearance in the last eight events. The bronze medals went to Japan and Malaysia.

The men's final was a repeat of the last Asian Team Championships two years ago in Chinese Taipei, but this time favourites Hong Kong gained revenge over title-holders Pakistan to beat the second seeds 2/0.

"This is a massive achievement and it proved that our bronze medal at the World Championships last year was no fluke," Max Lee (picture above, right, in Asian final action) later told the South China Morning Post.

Iran also made history by winning its first-ever bronze medal in the Asian Team Championships after the fifth seeds beat Japan in the quarter-finals. Malaysia also finished co-third.

David Mui, the ASF President was grateful to Korea Squash Federation for hosting the Asian Championships: "The Cheongju International Squash Stadium that was used for the championships is superb. There are 7 single courts with glass back wall and one all-glass court, which make it a perfect venue for both training and competition. The event was also well organised.

"I would like to express my sincere appreciation to Korea Squash Federation, who made the Championships all the success. My thanks would also be extended to all the officials, referees and helpers."

At the 38th ASF AGM, which was held during the championships, the Mongolian Squash Federation became an ASF member.

Bringing WSF & PSA closer together
WSF President Jacques Fontaine said: "It was an important intention for me to bring WSF and PSA closer together when I became WSF President - as a unified sport we will progress even more strongly. Our MoU has achieved this aim. Now joining together to allow players competing in our member nations' national and junior championships to have the opportunity of ranking points is an example showing the benefits of this unity.
"Our priorities as a sport are to offer leadership in education, accessibility and sustainability, and competition too - and our strong bond with PSA addresses the last pillar especially. I am sure that the WSF & PSA Satellite Tour will go from strength to strength."

As the 2018 WSF World Masters approaches this summer, the McArthur Squash Center at the Boar’s Head Resort marks significant progress leading up to hosting the championship, July 29-August 4, in Charlottesville, Virginia, USA.

“We still have over a month until entry closes on June 15, so we are very pleased that it’s about to hit 500 participants,” said Mark Allen, World Masters Championship Director. “Our goal of 800 total entries was an ambitious one, but we think we are tracking close to that number, which will make for a fantastic week of squash and social activity here at Boar’s Head Resort.”

In order to field the large draws, the McArthur Squash Center is constructing five additional courts—including a second glass court—for a total of fourteen international singles courts. Five additional courts are available at the nearby St. Anne’s Belfield School and another two at the University of Virginia’s North Grounds Recreation Center.

“Our five court expansion is moving along nicely and we are eagerly awaiting the arrival of the ASB courts from Germany on May 3,” Allen said. “The completion date for construction is July 2, which will give us a few weeks of play on the new courts before the tournament gets underway on July 29.”

Players should note that the men’s and women’s start dates are staggered, with the men’s draws set to begin July 29 and the women’s draws on July 31 in an effort to provide travel and cost flexibility. In a tournament first, the intention is to play out for the last sixteen finishing positions in larger draws. An estimated 70% of players will have at least four matches over the course of the week.

WSF RENEWS FISU PARTNERSHIP

The International University Sports Federation (FISU) partnership with WSF has been extended for a further four years.

The extension of the collaboration was signed by FISU President Oleg Matytsin and WSF President Jacques Fontaine at the SportAccord Convention recently.

FISU reported that that the collaboration with WSF has seen the level of its events grow, which offers an ideal platform for university squash athletes.

The extension of the deal between the two organisations was followed by PSA offering ranking points for the Individual Championships.

WSF chief executive Andrew Shelley said the new deal was an important step in the strong link with FISU. "The World University Squash Championships are already important and popular events in the squash calendar, and to give players the added incentive of ranking points offered as part of the WSF and PSA Satellite Tour can only enhance that," he said.

"Some past World University Championship winners such as France’s Thierry Lincou, along with Egyptians Karim Darwish, Raneem El Welily and Ramy Ashour have scaled the heights and have amassed so many ranking points since that they have become great champions – while this starting point will surely be welcomed by current students."

This year’s World University Squash Championships are being played in Birmingham, England from September 6 until 12; the city which will host the Commonwealth Games in 2022.

ESF’S HISTORIC FEMALE-MAJORITY BOARD

The European Squash Federation, has voted in its first female-majority board at the Federation’s Annual General Meeting in Wroclaw in Poland.

Rosie Barry (Ireland), Hugo Hannes (Belgium) and Thomas Troedsson (Sweden) were elected to join existing Vice-President Jackie Robinson (England) and President Zena Wooldridge, OBE (England).

“We were very fortunate to have such excellent candidates for this year’s Vice President elections,” commented Ms Wooldridge. “I’m particularly pleased to lead a new Board which is 60% female, which reinforces the sport’s commitment to gender equality as part of its campaign for Olympic inclusion.

“It is also a Board with significant and complementary experience, and will give new impetus to the continued growth of squash across ESF’s 46 member nations.”

One of the key tasks of the ESF Board over the next year will be mobilising support behind squash’s Olympic campaign.

“Europe is the largest and most active of the five squash regions, with 46 member nations,” explained President Wooldridge. “The importance to our Members of becoming an Olympic sport was very evident at our recent AGM weekend.

“The new ESF Board will play an important role in leading a collective European support behind WSF’s Olympic bid, for a sport which aligns so well with Olympic ideals and values.”

WORLD SQUASH DAY 2018

A reminder that Saturday 13 October is the date set for World Squash Day this year, the date on which players and clubs worldwide come together to promote the sport and support charities.

One of the main aims this year, as well as simply encouraging clubs to open their doors to encourage participation, is to use empty daytime courts for projects to welcome disadvantaged young people.

EUROPEAN HONOURS SHARED AT THE WORLD’S LARGEST SQUASH VENUE

For the fifth year in a row, England and France contested both the men’s and women’s European Team Championships’ finals – the outcomes remaining the same, with France successfully defending the men’s title in Wroclaw, Poland, and England retaining the women’s trophy for the eighth successive year.

Poland is experiencing huge growth, with an estimated 300,000 squash players currently, and the Hasta La Vista Club which hosted the action, boasts a record 33 courts plus an all-glass showcourt. This was the showcourt used for the 2017 World Games and on which feature matches at the WSF World Masters 2020 will be played.

Seeded one and two in the men’s draw, France and England duly lined up in the final for the 11th time since 2008 – former world number ones Gregory Gaultier (France), James Willstrop and Nick Matthew (both England) celebrating their 18th, 15th and 12th appearances in the annual event, respectively.

A mathematical conclusion
37-year-old Matthew was unable to mark his farewell appearance in the event with a win, however, going down to Gaultier, as France took a 2/0 lead over their perennial regional rivals. Daryl Selby reduced the deficit by beating Frenchman Lucas Serme in straight games – but when Frenchman Baptiste Masotti clinched the second game against Declan James (having needed to either take a game or win 18 points) in the fourth and final match, that was enough to give France the title for the third time in four years.

With all four squad members boasting world top 20 rankings, England were firm favourites to triumph in the women’s event – but had to come from behind in when Camille Serme, France’s six-time European Individual champion beat England number one Laura Massaro in straight games in the opening match. Udaunted, Massaro’s team-mates Alison Waters and Victoria Lust soon restored order for the favourites, beating Coline Aumard and Melissa Alves, respectively, in straight games to keep the trophy in English hands.
Spain take first bronze
Both Bronze medallists had much to celebrate – Spain’s 3rd place in the men’s event being their highest-ever finish in 40 appearances in the championship since 1979, while Belgium, led by sisters Nele Gilis and Tinne Gilis, outshone their previous best 4th place finish in 2004 in the women’s event.

The top two teams in the Division 2 championships earned promotion to next year’s main event. For Spain and Scotland in the women’s championship, it means a return to the elite group after a brief absence – as it does for Switzerland in the men’s event amongst, the 46 nations in European membership.

NEW YORK BOASTS WORLD’S FIRST OUTDOOR PUBLIC COURT
The unveiling of the world’s first public squash court in New York City has generated considerable public interest in the US city.

The pioneering project is the initiative of the Public Squash Foundation, whose goal is to offer free access to squash in public places.

The inaugural all-glass court, manufactured by ASB Squash, is modelled on the ASB ShowGlassCourt used at top tier PSA World Tour events, WSF World Championships and Commonwealth Games around the world – but modified for the outdoors.

The new court, at Hamilton Fish Park on Lower East Side, was officially opened by NYC Parks Commissioner Mitchell Silver. Installed on one of the park’s four handball courts, the squash court is the latest addition to the NYC Parks’ Adopt-a-Park program.

The New York breakthrough likely to be followed in other American cities and countries, ASB suggest.

"It is exciting to work with the Public Squash to bring an amenity as unique as outdoor squash to one of our city parks,” said Commissioner Silver at the launch. "Athletic activity benefits us mentally and physically; and falling in love with a sport like squash can expose us to worlds we may never have otherwise come into contact with."

Access to all
Ryan Wall, director of Public Squash, added: "Bringing squash outside, and making it free to the public, is the best way to give access to all, and increase the visibility of the game."

In a news story in the New York Times, under the headline Squash Without the Ceiling, New York stylist Danielle Brown told reporter Amy Sohn: "It’s amazing being outside ..... the whole community has been dying for this. I like it better than playing inside.”
